

Kettle Moraine Press Association Scholarship Application 2012

To promote journalism and communication careers, the Kettle Moraine Press Association (KEMPA) will award up to $1,800 in scholarships to this year's graduates of member publications who plan to major in journalism, photojournalism, communications, English, journalism education or related areas at an accredited college or university. A scholarship winner must carry at least the minimum number of credits allowed to qualify as a full-time student. This is a one-time scholarship and is non-renewable. One or more of the courses during the 2012-2013 school year must be related to the student's progress toward one of the majors for which the scholarship is intended.

Any 2012 graduate who is a college-bound journalist from a KEMPA-member publication and who wishes to apply for a scholarship must fill out this form and return it to the address below.

Along with this application, you must include the following items:

- Academic transcript from the school at which you are currently enrolled
- Your publication adviser's letter of recommendation
- Essay explaining your goals for the future
- Copies of no more than five published examples of your work. This might be photocopies of yearbook or newspaper stories or photocopies of layouts/photos, graphic designs, or printouts of web pages for your publication. For a sample of your broadcast work, include the URL of the location where judges may find your broadcast. Examples of your work will not be returned.

Applications and supporting material must be sent to Linda Barrington, KEMPA Executive Director, postmarked no later than Friday, March 23, 2012. Winning students will be notified in early May, and the scholarship award should arrive to help with second semester expenses next year.
